Call for papers

HASANZ welcomes abstracts for its 2018 conference. We are seeking presentations that will raise the bar for professional standards for workplace health and safety professionals and raise the standard of workplace health and safety advice in New Zealand.

Presentations will be given at the concurrent sessions in our conference programme on the morning and afternoon of Thursday 6 and Friday 7 September. We are seeking compelling, informative, future focused presentations that will build professional capability. We are interested in presentations that push our thinking above and beyond the ordinary. These may include case studies, innovative practice examples, research based presentations or technical and academic papers across all areas of workplace health and safety.
